I. Introduction and The University's Commitment

The University of the South stands firmly for the principle that its employees, students, and participants of university-sponsored programs and activities have a right to be free from discrimination based on race, color, sex, religion, national origin, age, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity, veteran status, pregnancy and childbirth, and genetic information. As required by Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 and the ADA Amendments Act of 2008, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, the University does not discriminate on the basis of sex or other protected categories in the education programs or activities which it operates. This requirement of non-discrimination extends to admission to and employment in those programs or activities. The University is committed to sustaining a community in which the dignity of every individual is respected. Key to this value are efforts to nurture an environment of civility and mutual respect and to foster a culture of reporting concerns so that the University can respond promptly and equitably whenever an incident occurs. All employees, students, and participants of university-sponsored programs and activities have the right to be free from harassment and retaliation.

The University is also committed to free expression. Speech not specifically directed against individuals in a harassing way may be protected by traditional safeguards of free speech, even though the comments may cause considerable discomfort or concern to others in the community.

Scope

WHAT conduct is covered by this policy?¹

Title IX prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex in any federally funded program or activity. This policy addresses review and response of complaints of sexual harassment, a form of prohibited sex discrimination, and other forms of sex discrimination involving students, faculty, staff and other participants in University education programs and activities. Sex discrimination is a broad term that encompasses several forms of prohibited conduct under Title IX. Sexual harassment, a form of sex discrimination, includes such conduct as non-consensual sexual contact, non-consensual sexual intercourse, dating violence, domestic violence and stalking. Other forms of sex discrimination may include claims of sex based decisions related to terms and conditions for participation in University programs (i.e. admissions, employment, athletics and other terms and conditions of participation in University programs). Some conduct that appears to be sex based may not be a Title IX violation, but may still be prohibited conduct that may be addressed as a violation under other University policies.

Conduct prohibited by this Policy also includes retaliation and complicity to commit sexual harassment or sex discrimination. Each of these terms is defined below. Discrimination concerns based on categories other than sex are addressed using the Non-Discrimination Policy (i.e. race, religion, etc.). Reports of discrimination that do not fall under this policy may be reported using one of the reporting forms found on the Provost's website.

WHO is subject to this policy?

The University is prohibited by Title IX from discriminating on the basis of sex against any participant in the University's education programs or activities, including students, employees and individuals seeking admission to those programs or activities. Students, faculty, staff, or participants in the University's programs or activities may report a claim or bring a complaint of sexual harassment or sex discrimination under this policy. This policy addresses matters of sexual harassment and sex discrimination involving students, faculty, staff and other participants and applicants to programs and activities of the University. All allegations of sexual harassment or sex discrimination involving non-student participants in the University's programs (i.e. Sewanee Writers' Conference), faculty and staff (i.e. invited speakers, lecturers, contracted workers, etc.) or non-affiliates working on the University campus or in University programs are covered under this policy.

Consistent with the Student Code of Conduct, student behavior occurring from the time of admission until the actual awarding of a degree or other separation from the institution. More specifically, each student is responsible for his/her conduct from their admission to the University through the actual awarding of a degree, even though the conduct may occur before classes begin or after classes end, as well as during the academic year and during periods between terms of actual enrollment. For entering students, a student's violation of the Code of Conduct occurring prior to the opening of residence halls for the admitted semester may be addressed through re-evaluation of the offer of admission. After the opening of residence halls for the admitted semester, a student's behavior will be addressed in accordance with the process published in the EQB Guide for Living in Community. For graduating students, violations of policy just prior to, during or after final exams will likely result in the inability to participate in Commencement exercises and stipulations that must be met to receive a diploma at a later date.

WHERE must sex discrimination occur in order to be covered by this policy?

The University views sex discrimination as deeply inconsistent with a community of caring and trust and is likely to have continuing negative effects within the University community. In accordance with regulations issued by the United States Department of Education, this policy applies to on-campus² conduct or to off-campus conduct that occurs both in the United States and in the course of a University program or activity. Off-campus conduct that may constitute sex discrimination, but which does not occur in the course of a University program or activity, or does not occur in the United States, may be addressed through the student conduct processes in the EQB Guide where a student is accused of misconduct, or through applicable staff or faculty disciplinary procedures where a staff or faculty member is accused of misconduct. For example, if students, faculty or staff are off-campus attending a concert, and the activity is not a University program or activity, and a student complains that another student, a faculty member or staff member sexually assaulted the student, the misconduct may be reviewed under Title IX, but may be addressed under the EQB procedures if the accused person is a student, under the Staff Handbook if the accused is a staff member, or under the Personnel Procedures applicable to faculty members if the accused person is a faculty member.

WHEN does this policy apply?

This policy applies anytime students, employees, or participants are participating or are attempting to participate in a University education program or activity in the United States at the time of the incident.

II. Definitions of Sexual Harassment

Sex Discrimination is a broad term that encompasses several forms of prohibited conduct. Sex discrimination includes all forms of discrimination based on sex such as issues of equity or discriminatory decision-making, non-consensual sexual contact, non-consensual sexual intercourse, sexual exploitation, sexual harassment, dating violence, domestic violence, and stalking. Sexual Harassment offenses include, but are not limited to, the following:

Sexual Harassment means conduct on the basis of sex that satisfies one or more of the following:

1. An employee of the University conditioning the provision of an aid, benefit, or service of the University on an individual's participation in unwelcome sexual conduct ("quid pro quo" sexual harassment);
2. Unwelcome conduct determined by a reasonable person to be so severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive that it effectively denies a person equal access to the University's education program or activity ("hostile environment" sexual harassment);
3. or Sexual Assault, Dating violence, Domestic violence, or Stalking (see definitions below).

² The Domain of the University of the South

A. Sexual Assault means an offense classified as a forcible or nonforcible sex offense under the uniform crime reporting system of the Federal Bureau of Investigation

1. Sex Offenses, Forcible - Any sexual act directed against another person, without the consent of the victim including instances where the victim is incapable of giving consent.

i. Including the following specific offenses

1. Forcible Rape - (Except Statutory Rape) The carnal knowledge of a person, forcibly and/or against that person's will or not forcibly or against the person's will in instances where the victim is incapable of giving consent because of their temporary or permanent mental or physical incapacity.
2. Forcible Sodomy - Oral or anal sexual intercourse with another person, forcibly and/or against that person's will or not forcibly or against the person's will in instances where the victim is incapable of giving consent because of their youth or because of their temporary or permanent mental or physical incapacity.
3. Sexual Assault With An Object - To use an object or instrument to unlawfully penetrate, however slightly, the genital or anal opening of the body of another person, forcibly and/or against that person's will or not forcibly or against the person's will in instances where the victim is incapable of giving consent because of their youth or because of their temporary or permanent mental or physical incapacity.
4. Forcible Fondling - The touching of the private body parts of another person for the purpose of sexual gratification, forcibly and/or against that person's will or not forcibly or against the person's will in instances where the victim is incapable of giving consent because of their youth or because of their temporary or permanent mental or physical incapacity.

2. Sex Offenses, Nonforcible - Unlawful, nonforcible sexual intercourse.

i. Including the following specific offenses:

1. Incest—Nonforcible sexual intercourse between persons who are related to each other within the degrees wherein marriage is prohibited by law.
2. Statutory Rape—Nonforcible sexual intercourse with a person who is under the statutory age of consent.

3. Non-consensual sexual assault:

- i. The University considers the following to be non-consensual sexual assault:
 1. Non-consensual sexual contact-any intentional sexual touching, however slight, with any object, by any person upon any person, that is without consent. Sexual contact includes intentional contact with the breasts, buttocks, groin, or genitals, or touching another with any of these body parts, or making another touch you or themselves with or on any of these body parts; any intentional bodily contact in a sexual manner, though not involving contact with/of/by breasts, buttocks, groin, genitals, mouth, or other orifice.
 2. Non-consensual sexual intercourse - any sexual intercourse, however slight, with any object, by any person upon any person, that is without consent and/or by force. Intercourse includes vaginal penetration by a penis, object, tongue or finger, anal penetration by a penis, object, tongue, or finger, and oral copulation (mouth to genital contact or genital to mouth contact), no matter how slight the penetration or contact.

B. Dating Violence means violence committed by a person:

1. who is or has been in a social relationship of a romantic or intimate nature with the victim; and
2. where the existence of such a relationship shall be determined based on a consideration of the following factors:
 - a. the length of the relationship.
 - b. the type of relationship.
 - c. the frequency of interaction between the persons involved in the relationship.

C. Domestic Violence includes felony or misdemeanor crimes of violence committed by a current or former spouse or intimate partner of the victim, by a person with whom the victim shares a child in common, by a person who is cohabiting with or has cohabited with the victim as a spouse or intimate partner, by a person similarly situated to a spouse of the victim under the domestic or family violence laws of the jurisdiction receiving grant monies, or by any other person against an adult or youth victim who is protected from that person's acts under the domestic or family violence laws of the jurisdiction.

D. Stalking means engaging in a course of conduct directed at a specific person that would cause a reasonable person to fear for their safety or the safety of others; or suffer substantial emotional distress.

Other Definitions Related to this Policy

Actual Knowledge means verbal or written notice to the University's Title IX Coordinator or any official who has the authority to institute corrective measures on behalf of the University.

Appeal is not a new hearing, but a review of a decision by an Appeals Officer. The right to file an appeal applies when there is a dismissal of a formal complaint or any allegations therein or after a determination regarding responsibility.

Complicity means conduct that knowingly aids, facilitates, promotes or encourages the commission of an incident of prohibited conduct by another person (as established in this Policy and by the EOB Guide).

Consent is clear, active, knowing, and voluntary. Silence, in and of itself, cannot be interpreted as consent. Consent can be given by words or actions, as long as those words or actions create mutually understandable clear permission regarding willingness to engage in (and the conditions of) sexual activity.

- Consent to any one form of sexual activity cannot automatically imply consent to any other forms of sexual activity.
- Previous relationships or prior consent cannot imply consent to future sexual acts.
- In order to give effective consent, one must be of legal age and not physically or mentally incapacitated.
- Consent can also be withdrawn at any time. It is the responsibility of the person withdrawing consent to communicate, through clear words or actions, that the person no longer wishes to engage in sexual activity.

The clearest consent is affirmative and active! It is the responsibility of the person who wants to engage in a specific sexual activity to make sure that they have obtained effective consent before initiating that activity. Lack of protest or resistance does not constitute effective consent. Silence or passivity does not constitute effective consent. Relying solely on nonverbal communication during sexual activity can lead to misunderstanding and may result in a violation of this policy. The University urges individuals to communicate with one another before engaging in sexual activity to ensure they both wish to engage in the same activity. The University further urges individuals engaged in sexual activity to clearly indicate to their partner what activities they do or do not consent to.

Important Information about Consent

- The person desiring to initiate sexual activity is responsible for obtaining effective consent.
- In order to obtain consent, permission must be given prior to or simultaneously with the sexual activity in question.
- Effective consent should never be assumed. Lack of protest or resistance does not constitute effective consent; force can not be used to gain consent. "No" means no, but nothing (silence, passivity, inertia) also may mean no. A verbal "No," even if it sounds indecisive or insincere, should always be treated as a denial of effective consent.

- If there is confusion as to whether effective consent is present (e.g., words, gestures, or other indications of hesitation or reluctance or behavior that could reasonably imply one party has changed their mind about engaging in a particular activity), the parties should stop the sexual activity immediately and verbally communicate with each other to resolve the ambiguity.
- A prior sexual relationship or prior sexual activity, even with the same individual, does not constitute consent to subsequent sexual activity. Past consent does not imply future consent.
- Although effective consent is generally evaluated on the basis of an objective standard (“What would a reasonable person have concluded?”), it may be evaluated on the basis of a subjective standard (“What did this specific person conclude?”) in the context of certain long-term relationships where the evidence shows that the parties have an established pattern of communicating consent that deviates from the objective standard.

Education Program or Activity - includes locations, events, or circumstances over which the University exercised substantial control over both the Respondent and the context in which the Sexual Harassment occurs, and also includes any building owned or controlled by a student organization that is officially recognized by the University.

Evidence Standard and Relevant Evidence - The University uses a preponderance of the evidence standard to determine responsibility. Preponderance of the evidence exists when there is sufficient evidence to establish that it is more likely than not that the accused party violated a policy. This standard is lower than the “beyond a reasonable doubt” burden of proof for a finding of guilt under criminal law. Relevant Evidence includes information where reasonable inferences can be drawn from the evidence that sheds light on a contested or inconsistent matter.

Force is the use of physical violence and/or behavior that a reasonable person would consider to be a threat of harm. Force also includes intimidation (implied threats), and/or coercion. Examples of force include, but are not limited to:

- Physical violence such as unwanted physical contact including, but not limited to, hitting, pushing, kicking, and/or restraining.
- Threats include any words or actions that would compel a reasonable person to engage in sexual activity that they would not otherwise have engaged in.
- Intimidation is an implied threat that menaces or causes reasonable fear in another individual.
- Coercion is unreasonable pressure for sexual activity. When someone makes clear to you that they do not want sex, that they want to stop, or that they do not want to go past a certain point of sexual interaction, continued pressure beyond that point can be coercive.

In evaluating coercion, the University will consider:

- frequency of the application of pressure;
- intensity of the pressure;
- isolation of the person being pressured; and
- duration of the pressure.

NOTE: Because passivity is not to be considered consent, there is no requirement that a party resists the sexual advance or request, but resistance is a clear demonstration of non-consent. The absence of resistance does not demonstrate the absence of force.

Incapacitation is a state where someone cannot make reasonable decisions because they lack the capacity to give knowing consent (e.g., to understand the "who, what, when, where, why or how" of their sexual interaction). Causing or attempting to cause the incapacitation of another person in order to gain a sexual advantage over such other person is prohibited under this policy.

Consumption of alcohol or drugs alone is insufficient to establish incapacitation. The question of incapacitation is determined on a case-by-case basis. It will include an analysis of whether the responding party knew, or should have known, that the complainant was incapacitated, or if the responding party played a role in creating the circumstance of incapacity.

Sexual activity with someone whom one knows to be—or based on the circumstances should reasonably know to be—mentally or physically incapacitated constitutes a violation of this policy.

This policy also covers a person whose incapacity results from a disability, sleep or unconsciousness, involuntary physical restraint, or from the taking of drugs if the responding party knew, or should have known, of the incapacitating condition or was the cause thereof. Possession, use and/or distribution of substances, including but not limited to Rohypnol, Ketamine, GHB, Burundanga, etc., is prohibited, and administering one of these drugs to another individual is a violation of this policy and amnesty will not be granted to the individual providing the drug.

The University urges individuals to exercise extreme caution before engaging in sexual activity when either or both parties have been consuming alcohol or using other drugs. The use of alcohol or other drugs can lower inhibitions and create confusion as to whether effective consent is present. If there is any doubt about the level or extent of one's own, or the other party's, impairment, the safest course of action is to forgo or cease any sexual activity. Being impaired by alcohol or other drugs is no defense under this Policy.

Intoxication is a state induced by the use of alcohol or other drugs that interferes with the person's ability to use reasonable care. The University regards intoxication as irresponsible behavior both because of its effects on an individual's ability to exercise sound judgment and because of its potential threats to health and safety. Not only do students incur serious risks for themselves and others when they drink to excess, but also they make themselves legally liable to prosecution, as well as morally responsible, when they contribute to irresponsible consumption by others and dire consequences ensue.

Live Hearing is a type of resolution process by which a Hearing Panel listens to the testimony of the involved parties and the witnesses, who wish to participate in the hearing process, in order to determine if there has been a violation of this University policy. A Live Hearing may, at the University's discretion, occur virtually through the use of technology that may allow all participants to simultaneously see and/or hear each other. A Live Hearing will typically allow for the involved parties and their advisors to hear in real time the testimony of each party so that they may cross-examine all participants who have agreed to provide testimony. Live hearings may also include other support staff or designated officials such as the Process Facilitator, Information Technology staff, the Title IX Coordinator, and/or the Investigator where necessary. The support staff do not participate in the adjudication process regarding a determination of responsibility.

Retaliation: Retaliation is defined as “intimidation, threats, coercion, or discrimination, including charges against an individual for code of conduct violations that do not involve sex discrimination or sexual harassment, but arise out of the same facts or circumstances as a report or complaint of sex discrimination, or a report or formal complaint of sexual harassment, for the purposes of interfering with any right or privilege secured by the Title IX statute or regulations.

No one, including the University or other person may intimidate, threaten, coerce, or discriminate against any individual for the purpose of interfering with any right or privilege secured by Title IX, or because the individual has made a report or complaint, testified, assisted, or participated or refused to participate in any manner in an investigation, proceeding, or hearing under this policy.

An action is generally deemed retaliatory if it would deter a reasonable person in the same circumstances from assisting or participating in any way in the investigation or resolution of a good faith allegation of an incident of sexual misconduct or other prohibited conduct under this Policy. Retaliation is prohibited even where there is ultimately a finding of “no responsibility” on the underlying sexual misconduct charges. Retaliation may be committed by the respondent or the complainant or by any other individual or group. Such conduct violations will result in disciplinary action.

Retaliation should be reported promptly to the Title IX Coordinator. Reported concerns of retaliation will be investigated by the Title IX Office. The outcome of retaliation investigations may result in discipline independent of the sexual harassment outcome.

Sexual Harassment Report vs Formal Complaint: A sexual harassment report is a report made, asserting a violation under this Policy. A report is usually, but not always, made by an individual affected by the specific behavior. A report of sex discrimination triggers some response on behalf of the University, but does not trigger a formal investigation and resolution process. A Formal complaint³ means a document filed and signed by a complainant, or signed by the Title IX Coordinator, alleging sexual harassment against a respondent and requesting that the University investigate the allegation. At the time of filing a formal complaint, a complainant must be participating in or attempting to participate in an education program or activity of the University.

Roles of Persons Involved in a Title IX Process⁴

Advisor is a required part of the Sexual Harassment/Title IX process for complainants and respondents. Both complainants and respondents can choose any person to be their advisor - a parent, a mentor, a peer, an attorney, etc. The role of the advisor is to conduct cross-examination of the opposing party (parties must never personally question each other) and witnesses at a live hearing. If a party does not have their own advisor of choice at the live hearing, the University will provide an advisor (at no fee or charge), for the purpose of conducting cross-examination at the live hearing. The advisor provided by the University may be, but does not need to be, an attorney. The role of the advisor at the live hearing is to conduct cross-examination on behalf of a party. The advisor is not to represent a party, but only to relay the party's cross-examination questions that the party wishes to have asked of the other party and witnesses. Advisors may not raise objections or make statements or arguments during the live hearing.

⁴ Complainants and Respondents may have no other individuals participate in the investigation or hearing processes other than their advisor.

Advisors are required to adhere to specific ground rules during the Sexual Harassment Grievance Process⁵:

1. The advisor may attend any interview or meeting connected with the grievance process that the party whom they are advising is invited to attend. The advisor may not actively participate or intervene in interviews or meetings. An advisor may not speak for or answer on behalf of the involved party, witness, or other individual at any point during the grievance process, including the investigation and live hearing (see the section on Considerations regarding disability accommodations).
2. During meetings, interviews, and hearings, the advisor may talk with the individual (quietly in person or in a private online room) or pass notes in a non-disruptive manner. In addition, while advisors may provide guidance and assistance throughout the process, all written submissions must be authored by the involved party.
3. An advisor's role is limited to cross-examination of the opposing party in a live hearing.
 - a. The Decision Maker reserves the right to ensure that only relevant cross-examination and other questions are asked and must determine the relevance of each cross-examination question before a party or witness answers.
4. An advisor may be present during the investigative process, but must be present during a live hearing, whether virtually or physically, in order to conduct cross-examination.
5. An advisor may be removed from at any point in the grievance procedure, including the live hearing and replaced if they fail to follow the guidelines of the University Sex Discrimination/Title IX policy and process.
6. A party's advisor may appear and conduct cross-examination even when the party whom they are advising does not appear.

Complainant means an individual who is alleged to be the victim of conduct that could constitute sex discrimination including sexual harassment. At the time of filing a formal complaint, a complainant must be participating in or attempting to participate in the education program or activity of the University.

Confidential resources are persons required to keep all information disclosed to them confidential within the legal and ethical bounds of their profession. At the University, these individuals include: University Wellness Center licensed professional staff and the ordained University Chaplains. Information disclosed during public awareness events such as Take Back the Night, Posse Plus ⁵ Advisors must sign a Release of Information Waiver as part of their participation in the grievance process.

Retreats, Sewanee Monologues and specially designated IRB-approved projects researching the area of sexual violence or trauma, are considered confidential.

Decision Maker is the University official responsible for receiving and resolving investigative reports, which can include convening a hearing panel and conducting any live hearing, if necessary. The decision maker may appoint a qualified designee in their place where appropriate.

Hearing Panel: The hearing panel is a trained group of employees called Hearing Panelists that determine whether a preponderance of evidence exists to find that an individual is responsible for a violation of University policy(ies). The hearing panel recommends an appropriate sanction (see evidence standard definition) when there is a finding of responsibility. The hearing panel includes the decision maker and may include at least two other panelists.

Mandatory Reporters - A Mandatory Reporter is a University employee who is obligated to ensure a report is made of alleged sexual misconduct to the University, usually by contacting the Title IX Coordinator or by reporting online to ReportSexualMisconduct.sewanee.edu. Mandatory Reporters, include faculty, student life staff (excluding the University Wellness Center staff), residential life student staff members, orientation leaders, FYP mentors, Sewanee police department personnel, coaching staff, supervisors of student employees, domestic and international program leaders, any visiting faculty involved in a summer program, Title IX and deputy Title IX Coordinators, the Vice-Chancellor, and the University Cabinet. A mandatory reporter who receives a report must report all known details that are received about the alleged misconduct, including the date, time, and location of the alleged misconduct, and the names of: the person who provided the report, the individual who experienced the alleged misconduct, the individual(s) accused of committing the alleged misconduct, and any other person involved in the alleged misconduct. The mandated reporter policy can be found here.

Participant - An individual who is not a student or employee participating or attempting to participate in a University education program or activity.

Police and Police Investigator: The Sewanee Police department, including a trained criminal investigator, is available for individuals who wish to make a criminal complaint that may result in a criminal investigation.

Process Facilitator: The University designates a single process facilitator for each report who assists the complainant and respondent. The facilitator is present during a hearing and may also do the following:

- Be available throughout the resolution process;
- Explain available resources for support and/or reporting;
- Explain potential sanctions;
- Provide clarity about the University's investigation and resolution/hearing processes;
- Interface with support persons for participants;
- Assist with support measures in the residence hall, dining hall, curricular and co-curricular experiences;

- Provide information about the appeal process and coordinate the filing of an appeal and response.

If students want information shared with anyone other than their advisor, the student must sign a “Release of Information Waiver.”

Reporter is the person filing a report about conduct that may constitute sex discrimination under this policy. The reporter may be, but is not required to be, the victim of the conduct.

Respondent means an individual who has been reported to be the perpetrator of conduct that could constitute sexual harassment.

Student⁶: Consistent with the undergraduate Student Code of Conduct, the University reserves the right to address student behavior occurring from the time of admission until the actual awarding of a degree or other separation from the institution. More specifically, each student is responsible for his/her conduct from their admission to the University through the actual awarding of a degree, even though the conduct may occur before classes begin or after classes end, as well as during the academic year and during periods between terms of actual enrollment. For entering students, a student’s violation of the Code of Conduct occurring prior to the opening of residence halls for the admitted semester may be addressed through re-evaluation of the offer of admission. After the opening of residence halls for the admitted semester, a student’s behavior will be addressed in accordance with the process published in the EQB Guide for Living in Community. For graduating students, violations of policy just prior to, during or after final exams will likely result in the inability to participate in Commencement exercises and stipulations that must be met to receive a diploma at a later date.

Title IX Coordinator: The University official designated to oversee Title IX compliance, which includes the sex discrimination response and investigation processes. The Title IX Coordinator may, in rare occasions, serve as an investigator.

University Investigator: A University Investigator gathers relevant information about an alleged incident that may be a violation of this Policy. Investigators prepare a comprehensive report of information received during the investigation.

Vice-Chancellor: The Vice-Chancellor or a designee(s) resolves Appeals of final determinations after a hearing, where applicable. This person may also be referred to as the Appeal Officer.

⁶ This policy statement also extends to graduate students in that the University reserves the right to address student behavior occurring from the time of admission until the actual awarding of a degree or other separation from the institution.

III. Reporting Sex Discrimination including Sexual Harassment

University Responsibility

All forms of discrimination that are prohibited by Title IX and this Policy should be reported to the Title IX Coordinator. The University strongly encourages individuals who have knowledge of, who have witnessed, or who have experienced sex discrimination, including sexual harassment, firsthand to report what occurred—both in order to get the support they need and to enable the University to respond appropriately. Once the University has actual notice of an allegation of sexual harassment, it is required to respond promptly in a manner that is not deliberately indifferent. The University must: (1) take immediate and appropriate steps to investigate or otherwise determine what occurred; and (2) take prompt and effective action to (a) end any harassment that occurred; (b) remedy its effects; and (c) prevent its recurrence.

Although there is no time limit for the filing of a report of sex discrimination including sexual harassment, the University's ability to respond effectively may be compromised by the passage of time between the occurrence of an incident and the filing of a report. At the time of filing a formal complaint (signed complaint), the complainant must be participating in or attempting to participate in a University education program or activity to trigger the University's obligation to conduct a formal investigation.

Reporting Options

Any person may report sex discrimination, including sexual harassment (whether or not the person reporting is the person alleged to be the victim of conduct that could constitute sex discrimination or sexual harassment), in person, by mail, by telephone, or by electronic mail, using the contact information listed for the Title IX Coordinator, or by filing a report using the online reporting system at “ReportSexualMisconduct.sewanee.edu.” Such a report may be made at any time (including during non-business hours).

The Title IX Coordinator at the University of the South is Dr. Sylvia Gray. Dr. Gray is charged with monitoring compliance with the policy according to the Title IX law and regulations. Dr. Gray is also responsible for oversight of Title IX investigations. Questions regarding Title IX, as well as concerns and reports of non-compliance, may be directed to the Title IX Coordinator using the information below:

Reporting Online: ReportSexualMisconduct.sewanee.edu

Anyone who wishes to make a report of an alleged violation of this policy has the following options:

1. Report to the University and/or;
2. Report to the Sewanee Police Department for on-campus conduct, or to the appropriate police agency with jurisdiction for off-campus conduct and/or;
3. Report to the US Department of Education Office for Civil Rights

Reporting to the University

University reports can be submitted electronically at ReportSexualMisconduct.sewanee.edu (preferred), or by postal mail, email, telephone, or in person (see contact information above). In person reports can be made to the Title IX Coordinator. Students studying abroad or away can report to the program leader or the Title IX Coordinator. In addition, all electronic submissions of reports are sent directly to the Title IX Coordinator and copied to the Sewanee Police Department. Electronic reports are also copied to the Dean of Students Office for undergraduate students, or the Director of the graduate program for graduate students or the Dean of Students of the School of Theology for Theology students. Faculty and Staff reports are submitted to the Title IX Coordinator and may be copied to Human Resources, the office of the Provost, and the office of General Counsel.

The University supports two types of reports—anonymous and identifiable.

1. Anonymous Reports: Reporters (other than University employees mandated to report) may submit a report of alleged sexual harassment anonymously online by omitting their name and contact information. In the case of anonymous reporting, the University will not be able to contact reporters to obtain further information about the incident or to offer options or support measures. In addition, the University's ability to respond to the report will be limited to the information provided. The University nevertheless encourages reporting of sexual harassment and sex discrimination, even anonymous reporting, and will make such use of the reported information as circumstances allow.
2. Identifiable Reports: The University preliminarily will gather and review information on all identifiable reports of sex discrimination, including sexual harassment. Representatives from the Dean of Students office, Title IX Office, and/or the Sewanee Police Department will promptly reach out to the reporter (or the person reporting on behalf of the individual involved, if the reporter is not the individual directly affected by the conduct) to advise them as to their options. The appropriate University official(s) will obtain additional information about the reported incident, if available, and offer support, assistance and, where appropriate, interim or emergency measures to address any immediate concerns for the safety of involved persons and/or the University community.

Where a complainant or respondent requests an investigation of a violation of this Policy, the investigation will follow the steps under the heading of "Grievance Process for Formal Complaints of Sexual Harassment."

Requests for Confidentiality

If the reporter or other involved party requests confidentiality—e.g., requests that the information contained in the report be maintained confidentially, that no investigation be conducted, and/or that no disciplinary action be taken—the individual with whom this information has been shared will consult with the Title IX Coordinator for further evaluation as to whether that request can be honored.

1. The University will attempt to honor a request of confidentiality if it can do so without compromising the safety of the reporter, complainant, respondent, third parties identified in the report, or the broader University community. In order to make this determination, the University will weigh the request for confidentiality against the University's obligation to provide a safe, nondiscriminatory environment for the entire University community.
2. When evaluating a request for confidentiality, the University will consider a range of factors to determine whether the alleged respondent will commit additional acts of sexual harassment or other misconduct. The presence of one or more of these factors could lead the University to determine that it must investigate the incident and, if appropriate, pursue disciplinary action against the alleged respondent. Factors include but are not limited to:

- whether there have been other sexual harassment reports about the same alleged respondent;
 - whether the alleged respondent has a history of arrests or prior records indicating a history of engaging in sexual misconduct;
 - whether the alleged respondent threatened further sexual harassment or other misconduct against the complainant or others;
 - whether the sexual harassment was committed by multiple respondents;
 - whether the sexual harassment was perpetrated with a weapon;
 - whether the complainant is a minor (under the age of legal consent);
 - whether the University possesses other means to obtain relevant evidence of the alleged sexual harassment (e.g., security cameras or personnel, physical evidence);
 - whether the report reveals a pattern of perpetration (e.g., via illicit use of drugs or alcohol) at a given location or by a particular group; and/or
 - whether there is any other evidence suggesting predatory behavior by the alleged respondent(s).
3. If the University honors a request for confidentiality the party should understand that the University's ability to meaningfully investigate the incident and pursue disciplinary action may be severely compromised. The University may nevertheless take steps to limit the effects of the alleged sexual harassment and prevent its recurrence without undermining the request for confidentiality by, for example, increasing monitoring, supervision and/or security at locations or activities where the sexual harassment was alleged to have occurred; and/or providing training and education for students and employees. Additionally the University can offer support measures as appropriate.
 4. If the University cannot honor a request for confidentiality, the University will share the reported information only with (1) those individuals who are responsible for handling the University's response, and (2) those individuals with whom the University must share information in order to conduct an effective investigation and/or implement an effective response so as to address any threat to the safety of the University community. In any case, the University will inform the requesting party in advance how the University intends to proceed, with whom the reported information will be shared, and whether and to what extent the reporter's identity can be protected.

Amnesty Policy for Reporting Incidents of Sexual Harassment to the University

Alcohol and other drug violations disclosed in a report of sexual harassment: Sometimes reporters or witnesses are hesitant to report to University officials or participate in report processes because they fear that they themselves may be charged with policy violations, such as drug or alcohol use at the time of the incident. It is in the best interest of this community that individuals feel safe to come forward to share what they know. To encourage reporting, the University offers all students reasonable amnesty from being charged for alcohol or drug policy violations related to the sexual harassment incident. For more information, see the Good Samaritan and Medical Amnesty Policy in the EQB Guide.

Reporting to the Police

Sexual harassment and some forms of sex discrimination may constitute a criminal offense as well as a violation of this policy. Incidents that occur on campus fall within the jurisdiction of the Sewanee Police Department.

Individuals who have been harmed are urged to report sexual violence immediately to the police, in addition to the University. The police have legal power to issue search warrants to collect forensic evidence, and are also able to assist in obtaining a court order of protection. Individuals may contact the police in any of the following ways: (1) they can go to the Sewanee Police Department on 111 Alabama Avenue and speak with an officer; (2) they can dial 911 for immediate emergency assistance or report directly to the Sewanee Police Department, by calling 1111; (3) if they seek medical attention, they may ask a staff member or medical personnel to call the police on their behalf; or, (4) they can utilize the LiveSafe Application when downloaded on a mobile device. If requested, the Dean of Students' staff can arrange and/or attend a meeting between undergraduate students and the police for purposes of filing a report.

Criminal investigations are separate and independent from University investigations. When a report is filed, the University will attempt to coordinate its investigation with that of the police to the extent possible. The University may delay its investigation temporarily while a law enforcement agency is gathering evidence so as not to interfere with their investigation, but the University will not wait for the conclusion of a criminal investigation or criminal proceedings before commencing (or completing) its own investigation. It is also important to remember that the definition of sexual harassment under this Policy and the related definitions under criminal statutes are not identical in all respects, and that the burden of proof for a finding of responsibility under University policy—a “preponderance of the evidence”—is lower than the burden of proof for a finding of guilt under criminal law—“beyond a reasonable doubt.” For these reasons, the outcome of any criminal investigation will not determine the outcome of any proceedings under this policy or vice versa.

How to file a report with the Office for Civil Rights (OCR)

Individuals with complaints of sexual harassment also have the right to file a formal complaint with the United States Department of Education, the federal governing body in charge of enforcing Title IX:

Office for Civil Rights (OCR)

400 Maryland Avenue, SW

Washington, DC 20202-1100

Customer Service Hotline: (800) 421-3481

Facsimile: (202) 453-6012 | TDD#: (877) 521-2172

E-mail: OCR@ed.gov

Web: <http://www.ed.gov/ocr>

Note: Federal laws prohibit the taking of retaliatory measures against any individual who files a complaint in good faith.

Note on False Reports: The University will not tolerate intentional false reporting of incidents. It is a violation of the Honor Code for undergraduate students, expectations for graduate students, and professional conduct of faculty and staff to make an intentionally false report of any policy violation; it may also violate state criminal statutes and civil defamation laws. Students, faculty and staff will be subject to disciplinary action if they are found to have knowingly filed a false report, made false statements, or submitted false information to the University.

IV. Requesting Support Measures

Individuals seeking support measures should speak with the Title IX Coordinator who will evaluate and, if warranted, coordinate appropriate measures. University officials may need to take protective measures to ensure a safe and nondiscriminatory environment even when the involved parties do not specifically request the measures. Students studying away or abroad should request support from the program official or the University of the South's Title IX Coordinator upon their return to campus.

The specific support measures implemented and the process for implementing those measures will vary depending on the facts of each case. The Title IX Coordinator and/or appropriate official will consider, among other factors: the specific needs of the complainant or respondent; the severity or pervasiveness of the allegations; any continuing effects on the complainant or respondent; the age of those involved if they are a minor; and whether the complainant and respondent share the same residence hall, class, athletic team, on-campus job location, etc.

Support measures should provide continued access to education programs and activities. Support measures prior to an investigation and hearing process may not be punitive or overly burdensome on the respondent. Support measures that may be implemented after consultation may include, but are not limited to:

- No-contact order between complainant and respondent or other involved party
- Limiting access to campus or areas of campus and certain college facilities or activities
- Alteration of class schedules for students
- Alteration of or release from on campus housing arrangements
- Changing campus work schedules or job assignment
- Requesting consideration of faculty for additional time or rescheduling of exams, papers, or other assignments
- Taking an incomplete in a class
- Authorized withdrawal from a class, study away or abroad programs
- Alternative course completion options
- Voluntary leave of absence
- Access to counseling services
- Providing a police escort to ensure safe movement between classes and activities
- Increased security at specified locations
- Any other reasonable remedy that can be tailored to the involved individuals

When a complainant and respondent are undergraduate students who are members of the same organization or athletic team, a dean of students or designee will consider ways to permit both students to continue participation. However when such compromise is not possible, the Title IX Coordinator has the discretion to determine how best to provide supportive measures to both students.

No-Contact and Protective Orders

A no-contact order is issued by the University and directs parties (generally the complainant and respondent(s)) to refrain from having in-person or electronic contact with each other, directly or through proxies. A University-issued no-contact order is enforceable through the University's conduct processes. The no-contact order is not the same as an order of protection/protective order, which must be obtained through the court system and is enforceable by law enforcement and the court.

If an involved individual represents an ongoing threat to the health or safety of another involved party of sexual harassment, it may be possible for the individual who feels threatened to obtain a court-ordered emergency or preliminary protective order. These orders are temporary, and they may be issued if the judge believes that there is an immediate threat to health or safety. Later, after a full hearing, the court may agree to issue a "permanent" protective order in appropriate cases. Protective orders are separate and distinct from University-issued no-contact orders. Protective orders may be obtained only from a court of law, and their violation may result in criminal charges. An individual who wishes to seek a protective order should contact the Sewanee Police Department. No-contact orders may be obtained through the Title IX Coordinator. No-contact orders, if deemed appropriate by the Title IX Coordinator, will be issued directly from the Dean of Students Office for students, Human Resources for staff, or Provost's Office for faculty, and are enforceable through the University policy and EQB Guide for Living in Community (i.e Code of Conduct), the Staff Handbook and the Personnel Procedures for Faculty.

Reporting Violations of Support Measures to the University.

All individuals are encouraged to report concerns about the failure of another individual to abide by the provisions of a support measure. Failure to abide by restrictions imposed by a support measure may result in disciplinary action independent of the outcome of a grievance process for sex discrimination.

V. Expectations of Complainants and Respondents

Expect To:

- Have your report heard in accordance with University policy and procedures.
- Receive information about your options and about the Title IX process.
- Have opportunities to ask questions pertaining to the Title IX investigation and resolution process at any time.
- Be informed of and have access to campus services, including confidential resources and support measures.
- To know, and where applicable, challenge for good cause who will serve in any role of the investigative and resolution processes.
- Have one advisor of your choice present during all investigative meetings and the hearing process.
- Choose not to actively participate in the investigation process or withdraw from participation in an investigation at any time with the understanding that the investigation and resolution process may or may not move forward to completion without your participation.
- Have ten calendar days (10) to review and respond to investigative reports and appeal documents.
- Submit questions for consideration for any of the parties involved in the investigative or hearing process.
- Review and have an opportunity to respond to all information presented in an investigation and hearing as allowed by the policy.
- Be informed in writing of the outcome/resolution, any sanctions imposed, and the rationale for the outcome, where permissible.

Differences in University and Criminal or Civil Court Processes

The University provides a fair, respectful, prompt, and reasonable process. The University's disciplinary processes do not and are not intended to provide all of the process and protections of criminal or civil lawsuits. Conduct violations that are also violations of federal or Tennessee law may be referred to the appropriate legal authorities for investigation and adjudication. Additionally, an individual who asserts that they may have been harmed by another may have the right to bring a civil, personal lawsuit against the alleged wrongdoer. The University's process is not a court process and thus rules of law, evidence, and procedure used in court proceedings do not necessarily apply.

The aforementioned list of expectations is not exhaustive. Please review this policy or see the Title IX website for more information. You may also contact your process facilitator or the Title IX Coordinator for additional questions.

VI. Resolving a Sex Discrimination Complaint

Reports of sex discrimination that are not sexual harassment under Title IX (i.e. sexual assault, dating violence, domestic violence, or stalking) should still be filed with the Title IX Coordinator and will be promptly directed to the appropriate University official for review and resolution.

VII. Grievance Process for Formal Complaints of Sexual Harassment⁷

The sections that follow outline the process for resolving a formal complaint of sexual harassment. The steps begin by describing who may file a report along with what occurs following the submission of a report and end with the Hearing Process and Procedures. Throughout these processes, any University official with responsibility under this policy may delegate their responsibility to another University official. This act of delegation is done to avoid an actual or apparent conflict of interest, to ensure a fundamentally fair process, or to ensure that the process is completed in a timely manner. Any investigation may be delegated to an external investigator by the Title IX Coordinator in consultation with other appropriate University leadership when necessary to ensure an impartial and/or timely investigation. Submission of a formal written complaint may result in a resolution process which typically includes the following:

- Submission of a report
 - Who May File a Sexual Harassment Report
 - Notice of options, resources, and individual or mutual support measures (where applicable)
 - Multiple Reports Filed
 - Multiple Respondents
- Preliminary Information Review
 - Review of Options and Resources
 - Initiation and Review of a Formal Complaint
 - Appeal Process for Dismissal of a Formal Complaint
 - Emergency Removal and Administrative Leave
 - Informal Resolution Process
- Initiation of the Investigative Process
 - Confidentiality within Investigations

⁷ Reasonable deviations from these procedures by the University will not invalidate a decision or proceeding unless significant prejudice to an involved party is caused by such deviation.

- Timeframe for resolving a Grievance
- Notice of Allegation(s) and Investigation
- Investigation Procedures
 - Compiling the Investigative Report
 - Review and Response Period
 - Final Investigative Report
- Hearing Process and Procedures
 - Hearing Panel
 - Outcomes

Submission of a Report

Who May File a Sexual Harassment Report: As noted in the “Reporting Sexual Harassment” section above, anyone with knowledge of sexual harassment is encouraged, and some University officials are mandated, to report the harassment or sex discrimination.

Notice of options, resources, and individual or mutual support measures (where applicable): There is no deadline for reporting sex discrimination, including sexual harassment, under this policy. Although delayed reporting may compromise the ability of the University to investigate and remedy the sex discrimination in question. Under Title IX, reports of sexual harassment (discussed below) must be in the form of a formal complaint - a statement (often electronic) signed by the Complainant setting out the facts alleged and requesting a formal or informal process before an investigation or informal resolution process may commence.

Multiple Reports Filed: If a second or multiple reports are filed against a respondent, or if additional reports arising from the same set of facts or circumstances are filed against other respondents, before the initial report is resolved, the Title IX Coordinator in consultation with other University officials shall have the discretion to determine how to proceed with investigation of the complaints. The reports may proceed with separate investigations and hearings, or may be consolidated.

Multiple Respondents: In the event that a report involves more than one respondent, the Title IX Coordinator in consultation with other University officials shall have the discretion to determine how to proceed with investigation of the complaints against multiple respondents.

Preliminary Information Review

Review of Options and Resources: Preliminary information review can be used for determining the need for support measures and/or an investigation. Following the submission of a report of sexual harassment/sex discrimination, the Title IX Coordinator or designee will meet with the complainant to review available resources and options (see section on Requesting Support Measures). A preliminary information review provides an opportunity for the complainant to share concerns about their experience to the Title IX Coordinator or a designee. The complainant will be informed of their options for resolution and support and may request other support measures even if they do not wish to pursue an investigation. (See section on Requesting Support Measures). Additional preliminary information, including written statements, reports and/or other information about the incident may also be discussed.

Initiation and Review of a Formal Complaint: Where the complainant wishes to move forward with an investigation, the Title IX Coordinator must have the complainant provide a signed request using the designated form. The Title IX Coordinator will determine if the allegations in the complaint, if proven, would constitute sexual harassment under this policy. The Title IX Coordinator must dismiss the formal complaint if the allegations would not constitute sexual harassment even if proven, the conduct did not occur in the University's education program or activity, or did not occur against a person in the United States.

The University may dismiss the formal complaint or any allegations therein, if at any time during the investigation or hearing: a complainant notifies the Title IX Coordinator in writing that the complainant would like to withdraw the formal complaint or any allegations therein; the respondent is no longer enrolled or employed by the University; or specific circumstances prevent the University from gathering evidence sufficient to reach a determination as to the formal complaint or allegations therein.

The Title IX Coordinator will provide written notice to the complainant and respondent about the dismissal of a complaint or any allegations therein. When the Title IX Coordinator dismisses a complaint, the Title IX coordinator may also forward the complaint to the Dean of Students Office for students or the Provost or Human Resources for employees to be adjudicated by the appropriate office.

Appeal Process for Dismissal of a Formal Complaint and Emergency Removal: In the event of an emergency removal or dismissal of a formal complaint, either party may appeal. See the section on Appeals for those procedures.

Emergency Removal and Administrative Leave: The University may initiate removal of a respondent from the education program or activity on an emergency basis. Where the respondent is a student, this process is an Emergency Removal. Where the respondent is a faculty or staff member, this process is an emergency administrative leave. In doing so, the University will conduct an individualized safety and risk analysis, determine whether an immediate threat is present to the physical health or safety of any individual arising from the allegations of sexual harassment that justifies removal, and provide the respondent with notice and an opportunity to challenge the decision immediately following the removal. This provision may not be construed to modify any rights under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, or the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Students and Employees with Disabilities

At any point during these procedures, students seeking accommodations for disabilities should contact Student Accessibility Services by phone at (931) 598-1229 or email at sas@sewanee.edu. Faculty or Staff seeking accommodations for disabilities should contact Human Resources by phone at (931) 598-1381 or email at hr@sewanee.edu.

Informal Resolution Process: Where both parties agree, an informal process may be pursued to resolve a complaint. In order to pursue an informal process, a formal complaint (signed complaint) must be filed. Complaints involving a student and employee are not eligible for an informal process. The Title IX Coordinator or a designee may facilitate an informal resolution process at any time prior to reaching a determination of responsibility. Title IX Coordinator or designee will obtain the parties' voluntary, written consent to the informal resolution process. An informal resolution process includes but is not limited to mediation that does not involve a full investigation and adjudication, provided that the Title IX Coordinator or designee notifies the parties in writing of:

- the allegations,
- the requirements of the informal resolution process including the circumstances under which it precludes the parties from resuming a formal complaint arising from the same allegations,
- provided, however, that at any time prior to agreeing to a resolution, any party has the right to withdraw from the informal resolution process and resume the grievance process with respect to the formal complaint, and
- any consequences resulting from participating in the informal resolution process, including the records that will be maintained or could be shared.

Initiation of the Investigative Process

Confidentiality within Investigations: Throughout the process of investigation and resolution of a report of sexual harassment, reasonable efforts will be made to maintain individuals' confidentiality by the University. At different times in the process, however, it may be important to discuss the alleged incident with witnesses and/or others who have information that is pertinent to the case, or on a need-to-know basis. While the University recognizes that involved parties need to seek support and talk to potential witnesses about the incident in order to gather evidence. It is also important, however, to use discretion in discussing the incident or the identities of others involved in the process. In a small community, public discussion of incidents can be very hurtful and deter others from reporting. Additionally, sharing information about the conduct of involved parties with others who are not necessary to the investigation or resolution may form the basis for a finding of retaliation.

Timeframe for resolving a Grievance: The University will promptly respond to any complaint under this policy with the intent to complete the grievance process within three months of the filing of a formal complaint; however, temporary delays may extend the resolution of the process. The Title IX Coordinator may determine the need for an extension or delay or the parties may request extensions or delays, in writing, to the Title IX Coordinator, stating with specificity the reason for the request. The Title IX Coordinator may grant limited extension of timeframes for good cause by providing written notice to the complainant and respondent of the delay or extension and the reason for the action. Good cause may include such considerations as the unavailability of a party, advisor or witness, certain concurrent law enforcement investigations, or the need for language assistance or accommodation for disabilities, or other reasonable good causes determined by the Title IX Coordinator.

Notice of Allegation and Investigation: Once a formal complaint is filed the complainant and respondent will be notified of the allegations and that an investigation will commence. The University does not compel any party to participate in an investigation or hearing process. However, the University may continue with an investigation or hearing even where a party decides not to participate or where a complaint has not been dismissed. Once an investigation is initiated and before the respondent is interviewed, the involved parties will be notified, in writing, of the commencement of an investigation. Such notice will:

1. identify the complainant and the respondent;
2. state the conduct alleged that may constitute sexual harassment
3. specify the date, location and nature of the violation(s) to the extent known;
4. include a statement that the respondent is presumed not responsible for the alleged conduct and that determination regarding responsibility is made at the conclusion of the grievance process
5. identify the investigator;
6. identify the Title IX Coordinator;
7. identify the process facilitator;

8. explain that the involved parties may have an advisor of their choice, who may be, but is not required to be an attorney. The advisor may also inspect and review all submitted evidence. Where an involved party does not have an advisor, the University will provide one on their behalf;
9. explain the prohibition against retaliation against any person involved in the investigation;
10. state the University's prohibition on filing false reports, knowingly making false statements, or knowingly submitting false information
11. instruct the parties not to destroy any evidence (including electronic evidence and photographs) in any format; and
12. provide a copy or link to this policy.

Investigation Procedures

Compiling the Investigative Report: Once a formal complaint is accepted, the investigator will commence a prompt, thorough, fair, impartial, and reliable investigation. The investigator will meet separately with both the complainant and respondent as well as any identified witnesses. The investigator will request relevant documents and physical evidence and ensure that the complainant and the respondent have submitted written personal statements prior to the start of the first investigative interview. The investigator will review each statement with the individual submitting it and share it with the other party. As determined by the investigator, only those identified witnesses who have direct knowledge of the event will be interviewed or asked to provide a written statement. The investigator will share witness responses with the involved parties. The investigator may make an audio recording as well as notes on each of these meetings.

The respondent, upon learning of the initial report and at any time prior to the completion of an investigation and the receipt of the investigator's final report, may elect to terminate the investigation by accepting responsibility, via written statement, for the conduct alleged. If the respondent accepts such responsibility, the investigation will conclude and a final investigative report will be made available to the complainant, respondent, advisor if applicable, and appropriate decision maker (i.e. dean, director, or designee) to adjudicate the complaint. Once the case is referred, the decision maker will proceed with a resolution, which will include any sanctions to be imposed. In cases where the respondent does not accept responsibility, the investigator uses statements and other evidence submitted by the reporter, complainant, respondent, and witnesses to produce a preliminary report that will be made available for review and response by the complainant and respondent.

Review and Response Period: Once a preliminary report is produced, the investigator simultaneously makes electronic copies of the report available to the complainant and respondent and advisor of each party, for review and response. Due to the draft nature of a preliminary report and in an effort to maintain confidentiality of the investigative process, these electronic copies may not be downloaded, copied, duplicated, or shared. The complainant and respondent will receive a PDF copy of the final report. Each of the parties may submit a written statement to the investigator within ten calendar (10) days of the date on which the investigator's report was provided to them. The purpose of such statements is to allow the parties an opportunity to address any perceived factual errors or omissions in the investigator's report and to disclose any evidence that was not previously known or available to the investigator. The investigator will review statements and any additional evidence provided to evaluate relevance and if relevant make the appropriate updates to the preliminary report. If new evidence or information is to be included in the report, that information will be shared with the other party who will be provided an opportunity to review and respond to the new information. Review and response statements will be added to the final report. Both parties will be notified of when the review and response period begins and ends as well as the approval of any requests for extension of time to respond.

Final Investigative Report: After the complainant and respondent have reviewed the preliminary report and submitted responses if any, the investigator produces the final investigative report. The final investigative report will set out the facts provided to the investigator, will summarize the information obtained through the investigation, and will include documentation submitted in the course of the investigation. Once it is final, the report is submitted to the decision maker for resolution. The investigator simultaneously makes copies of the final investigative report available to the complainant, respondent and advisors.

Once the final investigative report has been submitted to the decision maker for resolution and to the Advisors, the complainant and respondent, the investigation is deemed closed. No additional information or evidence will be considered except in extraordinary circumstances where it is established that the information or evidence was not available to the party wishing to introduce the additional information or evidence and could not have been discovered or obtained through reasonable diligence in the course of the investigation.

Past sexual history: The past sexual history or sexual character of a party will not be deemed relevant in the investigation or hearing unless such information is determined to be relevant by the investigator and/or Title IX Coordinator.

Medical and Mental Health Records: The University may not access, consider, disclose, or otherwise use a party's records that are made or maintained by a healthcare professional acting in their professional capacity, and which are made or maintained in connection with the provision of treatment to the party, unless the University obtains that party's voluntary written consent to do so for the resolution process.

Prior conduct violations: Previous conduct violations of the involved parties are not generally relevant. However, a University official may supply previous conduct information to the investigator if:

- the previous incident was substantially similar to the present allegation, or
- the information indicates a pattern of behavior and substantial conformity with that pattern by the involved individuals.

Previous conduct information may also be provided to a hearing panel during deliberations if it is relevant to determining an appropriate sanction in the present case.

Hearing Process and Procedures

Once the decision maker receives a final investigative report, that official will convene a Hearing Panel. The Hearing Panel is the only option for resolution in cases of sexual harassment such as sexual assault, dating violence, domestic violence and stalking unless the respondent accepts responsibility for the charges or there has been a request for an informal resolution of student on student cases.

Hearing Panel: The decision maker for cases in which the respondent is a student are typically chaired by a Dean of Students or a designee. In cases where the respondent is a faculty or staff member, the decision maker shall be a designee from the applicable College or School for faculty or from Human Resources for staff. If either involved party objects to the decision maker based on conflict of interest or perceived bias, the involved party must convey their concern in writing to the Title IX Coordinator within 24 hours of receipt of a hearing notice that designates the decision maker and Hearing Panelists. The Title IX Coordinator will determine whether the decision maker has a demonstrable personal bias for or against either involved party and, if so, a new decision maker will be designated by the Title IX Coordinator. The Title IX Coordinator's determination is final. The decision maker will select at least two hearing panelists to hear the case. The decision maker will avoid selecting panelists who have a close relationship with the involved individuals or who are closely connected to the issue being reviewed and who might have a difficult time rendering an impartial decision. If either involved party objects to a panel member based on conflict of interest or perceived bias, the involved party must convey their concern to the decision maker in writing within 24 hours of notice of the make-up of the hearing panel. The decision maker will make a determination whether the panelist(s) has a demonstrable personal bias for or against either involved party. If so, a new panelist will be assigned. The decision maker and any panel member is also expected to recuse themselves if there is a conflict of interest or difficulty in rendering an impartial decision.

Hearing Panel Process and Procedures

- Before the Hearing

- The involved parties (complainant and respondent) are provided at least ten (10) calendar days to review the final written report and evidence prior to convening a hearing panel.
- Hearings are audio-recorded and only an audio recording will be made available to either involved party by request in the event of an appeal. The hearing panel deliberations are not recorded.
- Each party and witnesses are placed in separate physical or virtual private waiting rooms prior to the hearing. There are no recording devices or additional persons allowed in the waiting rooms beyond those who are participating in the hearing according to this policy.
- Each party will be able to hear in real time the testimony of the other party and any witnesses who may be present for the hearing. Witnesses will not be present for or hear the testimony of the involved parties or other witnesses where a witness is not an advisor.

- During the Hearing

- The decision maker will commence the hearing by providing a statement of expectations on how the hearing will be conducted. The decision maker will also receive the verbal agreement of each person in attendance to participate in and adhere to the parameters of the hearing process and procedures.
- The complainant is the first party to meet with the hearing panel, followed by the respondent and then the witnesses. After hearing from the witnesses, the hearing panel may recall either involved party or witnesses in any order for follow-up questions or cross-examination.
- Each party commences by sharing an opening oral statement, followed by questions from the decision maker and hearing panelists.
- After each party and each witness responds to all questions from the decision maker and hearing panelists, each party's advisor may ask the other party and any witness all relevant questions and follow up questions including those challenging credibility.
- The advisor will state each question for cross examination to the decision maker prior to the party or witness's response. Before a complainant, respondent, or witness answers a cross-examination by an advisor, the decision maker must first determine whether the question is relevant and explain any decision to exclude a question as not relevant. The decision maker shall also have the responsibility to ensure that relevant and material questions are worded in a manner that is not intended to harass or intimidate the party to whom the question is posed.

- When there are no further questions, the party/witness then returns to their physical waiting area or follows the virtual parameters provided by the support staff to return to their virtual waiting room.
- After the complainant, respondent and any witnesses are questioned, if necessary, the decision maker and hearing panel may recall the complainant, respondent, or any witness for further questioning.
- When there are no further questions from the decision maker and hearing panel, the involved parties, or the advisors, the hearing will move forward with closing statements.
- When closing statements have been made, the hearing will conclude and the involved parties, advisors and witnesses will be dismissed individually where hearings are in person. When hearings are virtual, the support staff notify each participant when they are dismissed from the hearing.

- After the Hearing

- The decision maker and hearing panel then meet in private to deliberate. Deliberations are not recorded.
- The decision maker and hearing panel carefully evaluate and determine responsibility based on a preponderance of evidence (i.e. what more likely than not occurred).
- If the respondent is to be found responsible, then the decision maker and hearing panel will also consider appropriate sanctions.
- The decision maker makes the final decision about responsibility and sanctions, if applicable, and notifies both parties of the decision and sanctions, including the rationale for the outcome. Where credibility of the parties is an issue in determining preponderance of the evidence, the rationale will include an explanation of how the panel resolved questions of credibility.

Outcomes: The decision maker has the responsibility of providing the written notification to the complainant and respondent of the determination regarding responsibility, the rationale, as well as any sanctions that may apply. Proceedings and decisions will not be disclosed to those outside of the hearing except on a need to know basis or where a waiver has been signed by a student. The complainant has a right to be informed of the outcome, in writing, and to be informed of any sanctions that directly relate to them, and essential findings supporting the outcome. Outcome letters to involved parties will include, but is not limited to:

- Identification of the allegations potentially constituting sexual harassment under Title IX (see definition of sexual harassment);
- A description of the procedural steps taken from
 - the receipt of the formal complaint through the determination,
 - including any notifications to the parties,
 - interviews with parties and witnesses, methods used to gather other evidence,

- and hearings held;
- Findings of fact supporting the determination;
- Conclusions regarding the application of the University’s policy to the facts;
- A statement of, and rationale for, the result as to each allegation,
 - including a determination regarding responsibility,
 - any disciplinary sanctions the University imposes on the respondent,
 - and whether remedies designed to restore or preserve equal access to the University’s education program or activity will be provided by the University to the complainant; and
- The University’s procedures and permissible bases for the complainant and respondent to appeal.

VIII. Sanctions for Sexual Harassment Including Sex Discrimination

The range of sanctions under this policy includes but is not limited to educational sanctions, probation, suspension, expulsion, termination, or a combination of sanctions proportionate to the violation. Determinations of responsibility will be maintained in the student conduct record for students and with the personnel record for employees. All records involving sex discrimination are maintained with the Title IX office for a period of seven years.

When deciding on an appropriate sanction, the decision maker and the hearing panel may consider any student or employee record of past incidents of misconduct, at the University or elsewhere, including violations of the EQB Guide to Living in Community (i.e. the Code of Conduct), as well as the number, timing, nature, and severity of such past incident(s). The panel may also consider, as part of their deliberations, whether a given sanction will (a) bring an end to the policy violation in question, (b) reasonably prevent the recurrence of a similar violation, and (c) remedy the effects of the violation on the complainant and the University community. For more information on student sanctions and details about probation, suspension, and expulsion, visit the sanctions page on the Dean of Students website.

IX. Appeals under Title IX

The University will notify the other party that an appeal is filed within five (5) calendar days of receipt of the appeal. The other party has the opportunity to provide a written statement in response to the appeal within three (3) calendar days of notification of the filing of an appeal.

Appeals may be pursued when:

1. a formal complaint is dismissed
2. an emergency removal or administrative leave has been imposed
3. a determination regarding responsibility has been made

Appeals for a Dismissal of a Formal Complaint

If an individual wishes to appeal a decision of the dismissal of a formal complaint, such an appeal must be submitted in writing to the appropriate dean or director for students (i.e. Director of Community Standards, Dean of the School of Theology, or the Director of the School of Letters), Human Resources for Staff, the Dean of the College for faculty, or the Provost for other participants. An individual must submit their appeal to the appropriate dean or director within three (3) calendar days of the date of a notice of dismissal. The dean or director may decide the appeal directly or appoint a designee to review the appeal. The dean, director or their designee shall notify the parties, in writing, of the final action on the appeal within three (3) calendar days of receipt of the appeal materials from both parties. Where there is a need to extend the 3-day review period of the appeal, the parties will be notified in writing.

Appeals of Emergency Removal or Administrative Leave

If an individual wishes to appeal a decision of emergency removal or administrative leave, such an appeal must be submitted in writing to the Title IX Coordinator or their designee within three (3) calendar days of the date of a notice of removal. The Title IX Coordinator will appoint a board to review the appeal. The Title IX Coordinator or designee will collect all appeal documents and forward the appeal to the appeal board. The Title IX Coordinator or designee will notify both parties when an appeal is filed and when the appeal has been submitted to the appeal board. The chair of the appeal board shall notify the parties, in writing, of the final action on the appeal within three (3) calendar days of receipt of the appeal materials. Where there is a need to extend the 3-day review period of the appeal, the parties will be notified in writing.

Appeal from a Determination Regarding Dismissal or Responsibility

An appeal may be decided by the Vice-Chancellor or by a board appointed by the Vice Chancellor. Either party may appeal a decision and/or sanction. Appeals in cases regarding a finding of responsibility of the Title IX policy are limited to one or more of the following bases:

1. Procedural irregularity that affected the outcome of the matter;
2. New evidence that was not reasonably available at the time the determination regarding responsibility or dismissal was made, that could affect the outcome of the matter; and
3. The Title IX Coordinator, investigator(s), or decision maker(s) had a conflict of interest or bias for or against complainants or respondents generally or the individual complainant or respondent that affected the outcome of the matter.

If an individual wishes to appeal a decision, such an appeal must be submitted in writing to the Title IX Coordinator or designee within three (3) calendar days of the date of the outcome letter. If there is an appeal, it will be shared with the other party. The other party will have three (3) calendar days to submit their response in writing to the Title IX Coordinator. The Title IX Coordinator or designee will collect all appeal documents and forward the appeal, any response from the other party, and the hearing record to the Vice-Chancellor. The Title IX Coordinator or designee will notify both parties of the submission of the appeal to the Vice-Chancellor.

Process for Reviewing an Appeal for a violation under Title IX

The Vice-Chancellor may review an appeal directly or appoint a board to review the appeal. If a board is appointed to review the appeal, the chair of that board will make a recommendation to the Vice-Chancellor for a final determination. Reviewing an appeal includes an examination of the full investigation and hearing record, the outcome, sanctions, the written appeal, and any response to the appeal.

Decision on Appeal for a violation under Title IX

The Vice-Chancellor may choose to affirm the action of the decision maker, to affirm the decision but to change the sanction, to refer the case back to the decision maker and hearing panel for further consideration, or to reverse the decision. The Vice-Chancellor shall notify the parties, in writing, of the final action on the appeal within 30 calendar days of receipt of the appeal materials from the Title IX Coordinator or designee. Where there is a need to extend the 30-day review period of the appeal, the Vice-Chancellor will provide notice of the need for an extension to the involved parties and the Title IX Coordinator or designee, prior to the close of the initial 30-day period. The notice of extension will include the new expected date of the appeal outcome.

Decision Makers for Appeals

The decision maker(s) for appeals are not the same person(s) who may dismiss formal complaints, make a determination regarding responsibility for an alleged violation of the policy, or make a determination regarding an emergency removal or administrative leave.

Final Decision on Appeals

Involved parties are afforded a single appeal. An appeal board or designee will make the final decision on all appeals involving an emergency removal, administrative leave, or the dismissal of a formal complaint. Once an appeal is submitted and concluded, the grievance process for that aspect of the procedure ends and the decision is final. The Vice Chancellor will make the final decision on all appeals in cases involving a finding of responsibility for a violation of this policy.

Parental Notification

The University reserves the right to notify parents/guardians of dependent students regarding any health or safety risk, change in student status, or conduct situation, particularly alcohol and other drug violations. The University may also notify parents/guardians of non-dependent students who are under age 21 of alcohol and/or drug policy violations. The University may contact parents/guardians to inform them of situations in which there is a significant and articulable health and/or safety risk. The University also reserves the right to designate which University officials have a need to know about individual conduct reports pursuant to FERPA
